MEET THE CANDIDATES QUESTIONNAIRE COMPILATION

NOVEMBER 2026

As the heartbeat of the local business community, the Weston Florida Chamber of Commerce, alongside its Government and Legislative Affairs Committee, presents this Candidates Questionnaire compilation, to share the perspectives of all candidates vying for open positions in the current election in the City of Weston.

At the core of our mission as a chamber of commerce lies a commitment to fostering an environment where businesses can thrive and economic vitality can flourish. In the spirit of informed decision-making, we believe it imperative for our members and community stakeholders to have access to the insights and ideas proposed by those seeking to shape the landscape of our city. It is essential to underscore that the Chamber remains steadfastly non-partisan, and refrains from making any candidate endorsements. Occasionally as issues arise, the Chamber may take a position on policy only as it pertains to the business community as a whole.

Our goal is to provide a platform for dialogue and informed civic engagement. This compilation serves as a tool to ensure that the voices of the business community are heard and considered in the democratic process.

All candidates were provided the same questions and given the same amount of time to submit their answers. The answers provided herein are presented in their entirety. Edits, if any, were limited to spelling and formatting.

Why are you running to be elected to this office?

Because, after more than 35 years of calling Weston home and being actively engaged in our community, I am ready to continue serving the community I love.

My private-sector experience—including international shipping, mortgage lending, owning a concrete pumping company, and serving as an executive in my family's business—has given me a practical understanding of budgets, forecasting, business operations, and making difficult decisions. Protecting taxpayers and maintaining fiscal responsibility must remain at the forefront of every decision.

I raised my four children here, and proud that two of my children and grandchildren have chosen to make Weston their home. Weston is more than where I live—it is where my family has grown, built memories, and put down roots.

I want to help preserve the Weston Lifestyle: a safe, family-friendly, vibrant and culturally diverse community with A-rated schools, beautiful parks, green spaces, and a high quality of life. This year marks Weston's 30th anniversary and we must carefully consider how decisions made today will affect future generations. I believe our Commission must remain accountable to the residents and tax payers of Weston. My only interest is to continue serving our community and ensuring residents have a voice on the dais.

What are the three most pressing issues facing the communities you would represent?

The three issues I believe deserve focused attention are fiscal responsibility, smart redevelopment, and public safety.

Fiscal Responsibility: Weston's contract-city model has helped our community thrive for more than 30 years. As financial pressures affect residents, the City should distinguish between essential services and discretionary spending, review programs and contracts for efficiencies, and identify opportunities to reduce redundant costs. Fiscal responsibility must remain a cornerstone of every budget decision, with the goal of maintaining stable millage rates while protecting essential services.

Smart Redevelopment: As a mature city, Weston must carefully evaluate redevelopment proposals, particularly in the Bonaventure area where zoning changes could allow higher-density projects. I would closely review proposals, considering their impact on neighborhood character, traffic, infrastructure, and quality of life, and encourage development compatible with Weston's established communities and available capacity.

Public Safety: Protecting our families, neighborhoods, and schools must remain our number one priority. Development, infrastructure, and budgeting decisions should be evaluated through a safety-first approach. This includes ensuring growth is supported by appropriate infrastructure and that our police, fire, emergency services, and community safety resources remain strong, responsive, and adequately supported for the future.

What experience or qualifications do you have that make you suited to serving the interests of the business community?

My experience as an entrepreneur, business owner, and executive has given me a practical understanding of the opportunities and challenges facing the business community.

Throughout my career, I have worked in the private sector and these experiences have required me to understand budgets, forecasting, cash flow, contracts, operations, staffing, and the importance of making sound financial decisions.

As a business owner, I understand that excessive regulation, unnecessary costs, and inefficient processes can create real challenges for businesses. At the same time, I recognize the importance of responsible growth, maintaining high standards, and ensuring that businesses contribute positively to the community - creating a business attraction task force to identify opportunities, engage with prospective businesses, and help fill Weston's vacant commercial spaces with businesses that complement our community.

I believe Weston can continue to maintain its high quality of life while supporting a healthy and responsible business environment. I would bring a practical, business-minded perspective to the Commission and encourage open communication between the City, local businesses, and residents.

My goal would be to ensure that City policies are fiscally responsible, predictable, and thoughtfully structured so businesses can operate successfully while remaining consistent with the character and long-term interests of Weston.

How would you attract and retain employers and support sustainable economic growth in our area?

Weston has an opportunity to strengthen its local economy by attracting quality employers while making it easier for existing businesses to remain and grow. I understand that businesses need a predictable environment, responsive government, reasonable costs, and a quality workforce to succeed.

I would establish a business attraction and retention task force to work directly with property owners, existing businesses, commercial brokers, and economic development organizations to identify opportunities to fill vacant commercial space and attract employers that complement Weston's character and needs.

I would also focus on improving communication between businesses and the City, identifying unnecessary barriers, and streamlining processes where possible. Businesses should be able to understand requirements clearly and navigate the permitting and approval process efficiently while maintaining appropriate community standards.

Retaining the businesses we already have is equally important. I would encourage regular dialogue with local employers to understand their challenges and identify ways the City can support their continued investment in Weston.

Sustainable economic growth should be thoughtful and consistent with our infrastructure, traffic capacity, neighborhoods, and quality of life. My goal is to create an environment where responsible businesses can succeed, commercial properties remain vibrant, and economic growth strengthens—not changes—the character of Weston.

What would you do to help small businesses succeed, including making it easier to open and operate a business here?

Small businesses are an important part of a healthy local economy, and the City should make it as straightforward as possible for entrepreneurs to open, operate, and grow their businesses in Weston.

I would work to make the process of starting a business more transparent by creating a clear, easy-to-follow roadmap outlining the permits, approvals, fees, and requirements needed to open. Where possible, I would support streamlining processes, eliminating unnecessary duplication, and improving communication between business owners and City staff.

I would also encourage a more proactive relationship between the City and small-business community. Regular meetings with the Chamber of Commerce or a small-business advisory group could provide an opportunity for local entrepreneurs to share concerns, identify obstacles, and offer practical suggestions for improvement.

As a business owner and entrepreneur myself, I understand that time and predictability matter. Delays, unclear requirements, and unnecessary administrative costs can have a real impact on a small business.

My goal would be to create a business-friendly environment where entrepreneurs can navigate City processes efficiently, while maintaining the standards that protect Weston's neighborhoods and quality of life. Supporting small businesses means supporting local investment, jobs, vibrant commercial areas, and a stronger Weston economy

What plans do you have to address the shortage of workforce housing affecting local employers and schools?

Workforce housing is a vital issue that requires collaboration beyond the boundaries of any one city. I believe Weston should work with Sunrise, South West Ranches and Davie to develop practical, coordinated solutions that support both residents and local employers.

I would encourage discussions among municipalities, employers and community members to better understand the challenges and identify solutions that reflect the needs of Western Broward County. Teachers, first responders, healthcare workers, and other essential employees need housing options that allow them to live within a reasonable distance of the communities where they work.

Property and commercial insurance costs remain a major burden for Broward businesses. What would you do to address them?

Property and commercial insurance costs are a significant burden for Broward businesses. While the City cannot control insurance premiums, we can take practical steps to reduce risk, improve resiliency, and advocate for solutions that benefit our business community.

I would work with local businesses, insurance professionals, neighboring municipalities, and regional organizations to identify ways to reduce exposure to property damage and other risks. This includes supporting effective stormwater management, infrastructure maintenance, hurricane preparedness, and building standards that strengthen resiliency and may help businesses qualify for available mitigation benefits.

Name: PATRICIA BERNARDINI

Office Sought: WESTON CITY COMMISSION SEAT 3

I would encourage the City to provide businesses with information about insurance mitigation programs, resources, and requirements so owners can make informed decisions about protecting property and potentially reducing costs.

Because insurance affordability is a regional/statewide issue, I would support collaboration with other Broward municipalities to advocate for reforms that encourage competition and expand affordable coverage options for businesses.

As a business owner, I understand that rising insurance costs affect operating expenses, investment, and a company's ability to remain competitive. My goal would be to help create a resilient and predictable business environment while pursuing solutions within the City's authority and advocating for broader reforms at the regional and state levels.

Amendment 3 would expand the homestead exemption for non-school property taxes and create a path for local governments to eventually exempt homesteads from those taxes entirely. Do you support or oppose Amendment 3? Please explain your position.

I understand the desire to provide Florida homeowners with meaningful property-tax relief, particularly as rising costs continue to put pressure on families, seniors and first time homebuyers. Meanwhile, changes to property-tax revenue must be carefully considered because these revenues support essential local services, including public safety, infrastructure, and other municipal responsibilities.

Amendment 3 would expand the homestead exemption for non-school property taxes and establish a pathway for additional local exemptions. As a City Commission candidate, I believe it is important to fully understand both the potential benefits to homeowners and the long-term impact on municipal revenues before determining how these changes should be implemented locally.

My approach would be to carefully evaluate the financial implications, identify opportunities to improve efficiency, and ensure that any reduction in revenue can be managed without compromising the essential services Weston residents depend upon.

I also believe transparency and collaboration are important. Residents deserve clear information about how changes to property taxes could affect their household finances and the City's ability to provide services.

I will continue to listen to residents, review the facts, and consider the financial implications carefully, with a focus on fiscal responsibility, accountability, and the long-term interests of the Weston community.

How would you engage with the business community and the Chamber if elected?

I would make regular communication and collaboration with the business community and Chamber a priority. I understand the importance of listening directly to business owners and understanding the challenges they face.

I would encourage regular meetings with the Chamber, local businesses, property owners, and other stakeholders to discuss issues affecting Weston's business community, including vacant commercial space, insurance costs, regulations, permitting, and opportunities for economic growth.

I would encourage regular meetings with the Chamber, local businesses, property owners, and other stakeholders to discuss issues affecting Weston's business community, including vacant commercial space, insurance costs, regulations, permitting, and opportunities for economic growth.

I would support creating a business advisory group/task force to provide the City Commission with practical feedback/recommendations. This would create a consistent channel for businesses to communicate with the City and help identify opportunities to improve processes, reduce unnecessary barriers, and encourage responsible investment.

The Chamber can play an important role in connecting the City with businesses considering Weston, while also supporting existing businesses and encouraging new investment. I would work collaboratively with the Chamber to better understand the needs of our business community and identify opportunities to attract/retain quality businesses.

My goal would be to build an open, responsive relationship between the City and the business community while balancing economic development with Weston's infrastructure, neighborhoods, and quality of life. Regular communication and collaboration can help strengthen Weston's local economy and commercial areas.

German MELO FOR WESTON
City of Weston
Elect for Commissioner - Seat 3

Why are you running to be elected to this office?

I'm running for Weston City Commissioner, Seat 3 not for politics, but for purpose. When you love your city, leadership becomes a responsibility, not a choice. Weston has given my family so much, and I feel called to give back in a way that keeps our community safe, strong, and thriving.

My mission is clear: keep Weston safe, preserve our quality of life, and protect your tax dollars by maintaining fiscal efficiency and effectiveness. That's the foundation of good local government, and it's what every family in Weston deserves.

I bring more than 25 years of real-world leadership — in federal law enforcement, diplomacy, public integrity, and global engagement. Today, I help drive economic growth and cross-border partnerships as an executive with the Central and Eastern European Trade Center. I also continue to serve our at-large community with volunteer work serving as a Civil Air Patrol officer and Squadron Commander, because service has always been at the center of my life.

I'm running because Weston deserves a commissioner with integrity, experience, and a commitment to keeping our city safe, vibrant, and fiscally strong.

What are the three most pressing issues facing the communities you would represent?

The three pressing issues facing the communities I hope to represent are safety, quality of life, and strong fiscal management. These are the pillars that keep Weston the exceptional city our families rely on. Safety is always first. Weston is one of the safest cities in America, and protecting that requires constant coordination with BSO, fire/EMS, our HOAs, and the residents who notice concerns before anyone else. My background in federal law enforcement and emergency response gives me the experience to strengthen that partnership and keep our community secure. Quality of life is what makes Weston feel like home. Our parks, sports programs, senior activities, cultural events, and beautiful neighborhoods don't happen by accident — they require planning, listening, and staying ahead of issues. I want to be a bridge between residents and City Hall to ensure our programs and public spaces continue meeting the high standards families expect. Strong fiscal management protects everything we value. Weston's disciplined budgeting, AAA credit rating, and contract-city model keep taxes low and services strong. With economic uncertainty ahead, we need leaders who understand oversight and responsible spending. My career has been built on accountability, and I'm committed to safeguarding every taxpayer dollar.

What experience or qualifications do you have that make you suited to serving the interests of the business community?

I'm well-suited to serve the interests of Weston's and South Florida business community because supporting businesses — especially small and medium-sized ones — is at the core of what I do every day. As an executive at the Central and Eastern European Trade Center, my job is to help businesses grow, expand, and succeed.

I work directly with entrepreneurs, local companies, and international partners to strengthen trade, improve access to markets, and create opportunities that help businesses thrive. I understand what businesses need to navigate challenges, build relationships, and operate efficiently. Whether it's improving regulatory clarity, supporting innovation, or connecting companies with resources, I've spent years working in environments where accountability, transparency, and economic growth matter. I sit in the international advisory council of Miami-Dade Beacon Council and collaborate with Broward County Office of Economic and Small Business Development. I also bring experience from federal service, where I oversaw multimillion-dollar programs, protected taxpayer dollars, and helped modernize systems to reduce waste and improve efficiency — skills that directly benefit Weston's business community. I'm pro-business, pro-growth, and committed to making Weston a place where businesses feel supported, valued, and able to succeed.

How would you attract and retain employers and support sustainable economic growth in our area?

Attracting and retaining employers in Weston and surrounding areas starts with smart, intentional growth that fits our city's vision. Weston is a high-quality, well-planned community, and we should focus on bringing in employers who strengthen that ecosystem — high-tech, health care, finance, professional services — along with the small businesses that support their employees, families and attract residents in West Broward.

In my work at the Central and Eastern European Trade Center, I help companies expand, build partnerships, and enter new markets. Supporting business growth is what I do every day, and I want to bring that same approach to Weston. I would work with the City Manager, economic development partners, and local business leaders to create targeted incentives that attract the right employers — companies that align with Weston's long-term vision and enhance our quality of life.

At the same time, we must support small and medium-sized businesses, because they are the backbone of any thriving community. That means reducing barriers, improving access to resources, and making Weston a place where businesses feel welcomed and supported.

Smart, balanced growth keeps Weston business community strong — and I'm committed to helping employers succeed while protecting the character of our city.

What would you do to help small businesses succeed, including making it easier to open and operate a business here?

Small businesses are the backbone of Weston, and helping them succeed is one of my top priorities. My work in international business development is centered on supporting small and medium-sized companies — helping them grow, navigate challenges, and access new opportunities. I want to bring that same support to Weston.

First, we need to make it easier to open and operate a business here. That means simplifying processes, improving clarity in permitting, and ensuring businesses get fast, consistent answers from City Hall. I would work with the City Manager and economic development partners to streamline steps that often slow entrepreneurs down.

Second, I want Weston to actively support small businesses through better communication, access to resources, and partnerships with Broward County's Office of Economic and Small Business Development. Many local entrepreneurs don't know what help is available — we can fix that.

Finally, smart growth matters. Weston should attract high-tech, health care, finance, and professional employers — and support the small businesses that serve their employees and families.

What plans do you have to address the shortage of workforce housing affecting local employers and schools?

The shortage of workforce housing is a real challenge for local employers, schools, and the families who keep our community running. Weston must approach this issue carefully, responsibly, and in a way that protects our city's character while supporting the people who serve our community every day.

My goal is to work with the City Manager, the Commission, and regional partners to explore options for smart, limited, and well-planned workforce housing options in West Broward that fit Weston's long-term vision. That means looking at partnerships with Broward County, identifying appropriate locations, and ensuring any proposal meets Weston's high standards for safety, design, and community impact.

At the same time, we should support employers by strengthening transportation access in commercial areas, encouraging nearby workforce housing solutions, and creating incentives that help teachers, first responders, and essential workers live closer to where they serve.

This is about balance — protecting Weston's quality of life while making sure the people who support our schools, businesses, and services can remain part of our community.

Smart planning, strong partnerships, and responsible growth can help us address workforce housing without compromising what makes Weston special.

Property and commercial insurance costs remain a major burden for Broward businesses. What would you do to address them?

Property and commercial insurance costs are one of the biggest burdens facing Broward County businesses, and Weston is no exception. We can't solve this issue alone at the city level — but we can be a strong voice for our business community and push for real solutions.

My first priority would be to work closely with local employers, small businesses, and commercial property owners to understand their challenges directly. As someone who works every day with businesses of all sizes — from small firms to international companies — I know how rising insurance costs can threaten growth, hiring, and long-term stability.

I would bring these concerns directly to our elected officials at the county and state levels, where insurance policy is actually shaped. Weston needs a commissioner who will advocate for reforms, push for competitive insurance options, and support legislation that reduces costs and increases market stability.

At the same time, I would work with the City Manager, City Commission, and economic development partners to explore local incentives, risk-reduction programs, and partnerships that help businesses lower costs through improved safety, mitigation, and modernization.

Amendment 3 would expand the homestead exemption for non-school property taxes and create a path for local governments to eventually exempt homesteads from those taxes entirely. Do you support or oppose Amendment 3? Please explain your position.

As a homeowner in Weston, I support Amendment 3 because it provides meaningful financial relief to families and seniors living on fixed incomes. Keeping property taxes stable helps longtime residents stay in their homes, and that matters deeply to me and to many in our community.

However, I also understand the other side of this issue. Amendment 3 will create real challenges for local governments and could place a heavy burden on the business community — including the very businesses that keep Weston strong. Commercial property owners, small businesses, and employers across Broward County have been clear that this amendment could increase their costs and make it harder to operate, hire, and grow. I recognize and respect the Chamber's position opposing Amendment 3 for these reasons.

If elected, my responsibility is to balance both realities: supporting homeowners while working closely with the business community, the Chamber, and elected officials at the city, county and state levels to address the financial pressures this amendment may create. Weston deserves thoughtful leadership that protects residents and safeguards the businesses that fuel our local economy.

My mandate is to support homeowners while fighting for real solutions that keep our business community strong.

How would you engage with the business community and the Chamber if elected?

Engaging with the business community and the Chamber is something I take seriously because it's part of my everyday work. As a business operator who works directly with companies of all sizes — and someone with experience partnering with chambers of commerce, business associations, and serving on boards — I understand how important these relationships are.

If elected, I would stay closely connected with the Weston Florida Chamber of Commerce and the broader business community by attending meetings, listening to concerns, and making sure their voices reach City Hall as a commissioner. The Chamber represents my home business community, and I value the role it plays in supporting local employers, entrepreneurs, and small businesses.

I would also work with the City of Weston and economic development partners to create a clear, consistent line of communication between the city and our business community. That means sharing information, collaborating on solutions, and making sure Weston remains a place where businesses feel supported, welcomed, and heard.

Name: ALFREDO ORTEGA
Office Sought: WESTON CITY COMMISSION SEAT 4

Why are you running to be elected to this office?

Someone has to do the job, and I believe I have the right combination of passion, skills, and experience to serve Weston well. Weston has been my home since 2004. My experience working at the highest levels of local government in Doral—one of Florida's fastest-growing municipalities—has given me firsthand experience navigating the challenges of a dynamic, growing community. That experience positions me well to serve as Weston City Commissioner.

What are the three most pressing issues facing the communities you would represent?

The main issue, in my view, is making sure that the few redevelopment projects that are pending do not negatively impact on the city's character and quality of life. While there are only a few, some of them have the potential to radically transform the Bonaventure area of the city.

Two other issues are keeping an eye on the BSO contract, making sure we are paying the minimum while receiving the level of policing services the city needs—and making sure the construction of the community center by Library Park is completed under budget.

What experience or qualifications do you have that make you suited to serving the interests of the business community?

Before serving for more than a decade with the City of Doral, I worked in the private sector. During my time in Doral, I attended numerous conferences alongside the mayors I worked with, many of which focused on the business community and the role it plays in our local economy.

At the end of the day, meaningful progress is achieved when businesses create good-paying jobs and opportunities for residents. I believe government should create an environment where businesses can succeed—not stand in their way. Bigger government is not the answer. On the contrary, the more limited and efficient government is, the greater the opportunity for individuals, businesses, and communities to thrive.

How would you attract and retain employers and support sustainable economic growth in our area?

As a City Commissioner, one of my main responsibilities is to ensure that the city operates efficiently, providing high-quality municipal services while spending taxpayers' money responsibly and keeping costs as low as possible.

We should also make it easy for businesses to open and operate without unnecessary delays or bureaucracy. Government should charge only what is necessary and avoid placing unnecessary financial burdens on businesses, allowing them to focus on what they do best: creating jobs, investing in our community, and being productive.

What would you do to help small businesses succeed, including making it easier to open and operate a business here?

Responded in the previous question.

What plans do you have to address the shortage of workforce housing affecting local employers and schools?

In a free-market economy, particularly in a city that is already largely built out, opportunities for developing workforce housing are inherently limited. In Weston, only a few projects remain to be developed, primarily in the Bonaventure area.

I do not foresee the City Commission approving workforce housing projects that could fundamentally alter the character of Weston or affect the quality of life that residents value. Any future development should be carefully evaluated to ensure that it is consistent with Weston's existing character, infrastructure, and long-term vision.

Property and commercial insurance costs remain a major burden for Broward businesses. What would you do to address them?

As I said before, our job as City Commissioners is to ensure that the city operates efficiently and provides services at the lowest possible cost. Doing so is, in itself, one of the best ways we can help both residents and businesses.

Beyond that, local government has very limited control over the cost of insurance. Insurance rates are largely determined by factors outside the authority of a city commission. Our focus should therefore remain on the areas we can control: operating efficiently, reducing unnecessary costs, and being responsible stewards of taxpayer dollars.

Amendment 3 would expand the homestead exemption for non-school property taxes and create a path for local governments to eventually exempt homesteads from those taxes entirely. Do you support or oppose Amendment 3? Please explain your position.

I support Amendment 3. I believe it is never a bad idea to return money to taxpayers and require municipalities to take a closer look at their budgets, identify opportunities to reduce spending, and determine where cuts can be made.

The impact of Amendment 3 will vary from city to city. In Weston, I do not expect it to have a significant impact. We should make the necessary cuts and find efficiencies before asking our residents to pay more.

How would you engage with the business community and the Chamber if elected?

The business community is an essential part of a city. If elected, I will remain actively engaged with local businesses to understand their needs and ensure there is never a disconnect between the work we do as commissioners and the stakeholders we serve.

I also learned from a former commissioner that promoting local businesses through social media can make a meaningful difference. I have personally benefited from his recommendations—I have purchased tires, taken my daughter to an orthodontist, and taken my son to get his hair cut at businesses he promoted on social media.

If elected, I would love to do the same: use my platform to highlight and support local businesses and help connect them with the residents they serve.
